SCHOOL COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

1 In presenting my second annual report I regret to say that our schools the past year have not all made that advancement necessary. It is believed that the teachers employed have been faithful to the extent of their ability, and some of them "apt to teach" and good disciplinarians; but to give a correct report and do justice to them it is necessary to take into account the training most of the scholars receive at home. It needs no private acquaintance with individual families to know that a large majority of parents exert over their children no controlling influence in regard to their general conduct at school, or the respect and obedience they owe their teacher, or that they must be regular and punctual at school. During the past year there have been 848 instances of tardiness; this together with a reduced average attendance, are disgraceful facts and need no comment. They too plainly indicate neglect and indifference on the part of many parents, and are strong arguments for advocates of COMPULSORY attendance. Another evil, of like tendency, is the continual fault-finding of outside parties who never visit schools and who, consequently, are entirely ignorant of their practical workings. No person has the moral right to find fault with a teacher until he has visited the school and made himself familiar with its management. If the teacher is found incompetent it is then time enough to enter a formal complaint. A school cannot be a complete success unless parents and teachers co-operate together for the public good. Such being the defects of our system, what then is the obvious remedy?

2 First, Employ only first-class teachers. This I say without intending to reflect in any manner upon those who have performed well their part.

Second, Let parents manifest a better spirit toward the teachers and materially help them by subjecting their children to good discipline at home.

Third, Increase your amount of school money.

Fourth, Provide better school-rooms.

5 We have some school-houses in town unworthy of the name; they are miserable old hovels, totally unfit for the purposes designed and hardly up to the level of second-class pig-pens. There are but few school-rooms to be found anywhere so mean and dirty. School-houses are educators; on their attraction and comfort depend in a measure the contentment, intelligence, virtue and happiness of the pupil. It is said that our fathers received their education in these school-houses and therefore they should answer for us. The meeting-houses in which our fathers worshipped have given place to edifices superior to them in point of elegance and convenience. We assemble in these but one day in a week, and that too for only a few hours, while the scholar is confined in the ancient school-room every day in the week for months in succession. It is not enough that we can get along with poor school-houses and schools and still live. I desire to see our schools steadily advancing in the path of progress until they reach a degree of perfection hitherto attained. (It is a duty incumbent upon every good citizen to see that his children are educated to the extent of his means. It is more desirable to educate our children than to support them as criminals and paupers.

I close my report with some detailed remarks concerning the different schools.

DISTRICT No. 1.

The Fall Term was taught by Miss Fannie Tilton, of Derry. This school is very small, too limited in numbers to awaken encouraging energy in either teacher or pupil. The order of the school has been well sustained; good progress was observable in reading and spelling, but writing was too much neglected. This school, though small, needs a teacher of sufficient ability to throw life and activity into every branch of study.

DISTRICT No. 2.

The Summer and Winter terms were taught by Miss Olivia J. Otis, of Lee. In my several visits to her school during the year I invariably found good order and earnest effort on the part of the teacher. I regard Miss Otis' method of instruction as worthy of imitation, being alike systematic and thorough. She is an energetic teacher and deserves much credit for her untiring exertions to promote the interests of the school.

DISTRICT No. 3.

The Summer Term was taught by Miss Mary E. Dow, of Seabrook. I found this school very quiet, orderly and well-disposed. The Winter Term was taught by Mr. Edwin Eaton, of Seabrook. I received no notice of the commencement or close of the term, consequently am not able to say much relative to the comparative progress of the school. It is the duty of the Prudential Committee to notify the Superintending School Committee of the commencement and close of each term.

DISTRICT No. 4.

The Summer Term was taught by Miss Martha A. Dow, of Seabrook. This school was closed before a second visit was made, but as Miss Dow is an experienced teacher and taught in this district last year, we have reason to believe the time well spent by teacher and pupils. The Winter Term was taught by Miss Mary E. Dow, of Seabrook. Considering the condition of the school-room a fair progress was made; still the school is backward in reading.

DISTRICT No. 5.

The Summer Term in this district was taught by Miss Caroline A. Perkins, of Seabrook. This is the largest school in town, numbering 113 scholars. No one can expect a teacher to do justice with so large a number. The Winter Term was taught by Miss Martha P. Perkins, of Hampton. This was Miss Perkins' second year of teaching in this district, and she sustained her reputation as a successful teacher. There are forty-five scholars reported in this district between 4 and 14 as not attending school this winter.

Appended to this report will be found a list of names of scholars who have received honorable mention for their regular attendance.

All of which is respectfully submitted.
